

Vincent Terranova, owner of Northport's Jones Drug Store, with a 1902 typewriter. The store has served the community for 120 years.

Come on in and step back in time at these 10 Long Island stores

BY ARLENE GROSS
Special to Newsday

Who said time travel isn't possible? While we may not be able to jump into the future, opportunities abound around Long Island to step back in time with plenty of cool, old-timey shops. Find thousands of nostalgic candies, toys, merchandising signs and collectibles at these 10 retro retail spots.

ROSIE'S VINTAGE

At Rosie's Vintage, you'll find mostly items from the 1940s through 1960s, including vintage barware, home décor, kitchenware, clothing, furniture, records and decorative knickknacks.

The store, which is housed in a circa 1830s farmhouse, is the perfect vessel for its vintage inventory, says owner Thea Morales.

"I strongly believe the cozy and familiar feeling of being in a house helps our customers choose the vintage merchandise they would want to put in their own homes," Morales says.

WHERE TO SHOP 101 Woodbury Rd., Huntington, 631-549-9100; rosiesvintage.com. Open daily, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

NETTLE & ROSE

This herbal apothecary and holistic lifestyle shop opened just over two years ago in an old, petite, pink-painted building. Between its healing wares and its setting, Nettle & Rose gives off an old-time feel.

"I carry over 75 loose herbs," says owner Bay Rose. "We have our line of teas for a range of different ailments. Everything we carry here is organic, plastic-free, as low waste or as zero waste as possible."

Nettle & Rose also carries napkins, water bottles, mugs and other home goods, and medicinal items, including a whole section dedicated to joy and anxiety-reduction.

WHERE TO SHOP 77 Main St., West Sayville, 631-589-3580; nettleandrose.com. Open Thursday to Sunday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

ST. JAMES GENERAL STORE

"The store has been in continuous operation since 1857. We're the oldest continuously run general store in the United States," says Karen Sheedy, store manager, who has worked there since 1999. "Back in the day, this was the only place to shop for any of your goods" in the neighborhood.

These days, you'll find two floors